txEDCON2020 offers a variety of learning experiences along with intentional breaks for attendees to recharge.

More than 50 Concurrent Sessions are being offered during our live event. Credit awarded for watching sessions on demand may be less than 1 hour. This is due to the fact that the added live Q&A made the live sessions longer.

We’re partnering with Thoughtexchange to develop our Crowd-Sourced Sessions on Friday morning. The tool will be open for input beginning Wednesday evening through Thursday afternoon at 4 p.m. Topics will be announced Thursday at 5 p.m. for our sessions on Friday at 9:30 a.m. Participants will receive 45 minutes of credit for each session attended.

There will be several opportunities for participants to share their successes and challenges related to the pandemic, social justice reform, and improved equity during scheduled Networking sessions on Wednesday and Thursday. These will be opportunities for board members and district leaders to share stories, problem solve, and discuss the issues that are most timely for their communities.

Bonus Content will be available on demand beginning Thursday at 5 p.m. for attendees wanting to enrich their learning experience and extend their conference training. Participants will earn .5 to 1 hour of credit for each session attended.

All content will be available for 30 days after the live event concludes.
What is a virtual Exhibit Hall? Your favorite vendors have come together to create virtual exhibit booths for you to visit during this year’s event. Click the Exhibit Hall tab on the home page to go directly into the Exhibit Hall. You can speak or chat with vendors live, download information from their booths, or leave your contact information to follow up later.

Prize drawings will be awarded for visiting the Exhibit Hall, and multiple vendors will be giving out prizes in their booths. Are you collecting points for Gamification? Seats at the Table: The Challenges of Overcoming Racism and Achieving Educational Equity

As a result of recent national events highlighting the need for continued advocacy on achieving racial justice in our world—and in our school districts—the Mexican American School Boards Association (MASBA) and the Texas Caucus of Black School Board Members (TCBSBM) have published Seats at the Table, a work on school board members’ perspectives on race and racism. Join us for a courageous conversation on how far we’ve come in our lifetimes, but also on the journey that lies ahead if we are to bring equity to the educational systems we lead.

Leadership through Challenging Times

The TASB presidential term is normally distinguished by a hectic calendar of travel, presiding over the meetings of a 42-member Board of Directors, providing welcome speeches at gatherings of thousands of locally elected trustees, and personal interactions with a wide array of elected officials and other leaders at the state and national level.

For Lee Lentz-Edwards, a trustee on the Kermit ISD School Board, her presidential year has been anything but normal. Instead, she has been called to lead through a time of tremendous uncertainty for Texas public schools and the students they serve.

But her indomitable, can-do spirit has seen her through circumstances that would have baffled anyone else. She has provided a calm, guiding force for those around her, leading the way for her local board and for the TASB Board and staff. She has found ways to carry on, accomplishing her responsibilities with fearlessness and grace.

When the TASB summer board meetings were changed to virtual events, she suggested the theme, Turning Lemons to Lemonade and found ways to interject fun and a light-hearted approach to what might have otherwise been a disappointing time for the participants. Her determination to serve well regardless of the impediments inspired all around her. We are thankful that we had Lee as our president during 2020. She made all the difference!

Landscapes, Environments, and Ecosystems: Why Are They Digital?
Cybersecurity, accountability dashboards, online assessments, and continuity plans are looming issues that require the board’s attention and understanding. In this session, we will investigate a model for framing technology conversations. What is a digital landscape, digital environment, or learning ecosystem? By learning to strategically organize discussions around the function and placement of the technology, you will be able to better understand and assess the threats and benefits at a governance level. “What is the best” will not be addressed (that is an administrative concern). How to ask the right questions and develop strategic goals involving technology will be covered.

Key Communicator Award Recognition

Andy Welch

11:30–noon
Introduction:
Brian T. Woods, TASA President
Northside ISD Student Performance

Welch named TSPRA 2020 Key Communicator

Former Austin ISD Communication Director and longtime education reporter Andy Welch has been named the recipient of the Key Communicator Award for 2020 by the Texas School Public Relations Association (TSPRA).

Throughout his remarkable career in communications, Welch served as a State Capitol reporter for daily newspapers and radio stations across the state, served on the staff of Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, promoted Texas foods, wines, and organic produce, and worked as communication director for State Comptroller John Sharp.

In 1998, Welch began his tenure as communication director for Austin ISD, a position he held until his retirement in 2011. As the 2013 legislative session approached, TSPRA Executive Director Linsae Snider recruited Welch to write the EduLege newsletter to help keep TSPRA members informed of important education-related issues. Now in his eighth year with the newsletter, Welch has produced approximately 850 editions of EduLege.

Since 1981, TSPRA has recognized a Key Communicator for outstanding contributions to public education through effective communications. The recipient may be a legislator, educator, or a professional in another field who has improved school communications, or a member of TSPRA who has contributed outstanding service to the profession of school communications across the state of Texas. Recipients have included leaders from business, media, PTA, politics, and education.
Leadership through Challenging Times

In normal times, Brian Woods is a superintendent’s superintendent. A leader among leaders and a former Texas Superintendent of the Year, he has always been a powerful voice and force for public schools. Innovative and ethical, he is looked upon as a model school administrator and educator.

However, since taking office as TASA president this June in a time of crisis, Woods’ leadership ability and influence have been revealed to be even stronger and deeper than we knew. In addition to leading Northside ISD, one of the largest districts in Texas, during the most challenging of times, he has also been involved in state-level discussions on issues affecting Texas public schools on nearly a daily basis. Always a voice of reason, wisdom, and courage, he has gone to bat for our schools in a way few others can, influencing state leaders on countless matters.

Whether Woods is being interviewed by CNN or the local media, or if he is conferring with state or national leaders, he is an ambassador for public education, always representing educators and their mission with professionalism, grace, and tireless passion.

During normal times, Woods is an outstanding leader, but during these times of crisis, his exceptional leadership has been a game changer for school districts across our state.

TASA is proud to have him at our helm for the 2020-21 school year. Thank you for all that you do, Brian!

Improving District Stability and Board Governance through the Superintendent Contract
Studies of student outcomes credit district leadership stability in improving student performance. Commitment to board goals is critical to driving student success and the superintendent’s contract can be structured to help provide the stability needed to stay the course. It can also be used to better define roles and responsibilities to ensure good board governance and make your district an attractive place to be a superintendent.

Presenters:
Cory Hartsfield, Adams, Lynch & Loftin, PC; Mason Moses and Chris Jamail, TCG Advisors

Governance and Board/Superintendent Relationships

Internal Audit: Proactive Growth through Introspective Analysis
